BANK CLERKS HOLD MEETING

Local Chapter of National Institute Start Winter Work.

Delegates to Chattanooga Convention Make Report—Educational Courses Planned.

Inaugurating the regular series of weekly sessions for the winter, the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Banking met last night in their room at 1214 F street to consider plans for an extensive educational work, and to hear the reports of the delegates who attended the recent institute convention at Chattanooga. A large number of the members of the chapter were present, and added interest was given to the meeting from the fact that all of the former presidents of the organization were in attendance.

Reporting on the convention, several members gave interesting talks concerning the work of the institute, the features of the convention, and descriptions of the city of Chattanooga and section of the South through which the convention train passed. Joshua Evans, Jr., who is chairman of the educational committee of the local chapter, spoke at some length on the stress laid upon this feature by the convention, and outlined two courses to be taken up by the chapter during the coming winter.

The chapter was unanimous in endorsing the plans of Mr. Evans, and under the direction of professors to be secured from some of the Washington universities will undertake the study of banking and finance and commercial and banking law. These two courses are given under the primary direction of the national organization, and upon successful completion certificates are issued, acceptable in any of the American universities.

Under the plans of the chapter, alternate Thursdays will be devoted to lectures and recitations upon these two subjects. On the intervening meeting nights lectures will be given under the direction of Henry V. Haynes, chairman of the programme committee. The speakers will be chosen from prominent men of the banking fraternity, members of the House, and others.

Officers of the chapter for the year are as follows: President, A. B. Claxton; vice president, R. F. Miller; treasurer, F. E. Devereaux; secretary, J. B. G.

A pretty wedding of much interest in Washington took place yesterday in Philadelphia, when Miss Mary H. Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Penrose Perkins, became the wife of Lieut. D. Pratt Mannix, U. S. N., formerly of this city.

The ceremony was performed at noon in Holy Trinity Church, in Rittenhouse Square, by Rev. Dr. Floyd W. Tompkins, rector. The reception breakfast followed in the home of the bride's parents in Philadelphia. The scene at the church was more than ordinarily beautiful, as the bride is a young woman of great beauty, and the uniforms of the bridegroom and his attendants, against the background of decorations, were particularly effective.

The bride is a niece of Senator Penrose and closely related to the Keiths, also of Philadelphia. She was a debutante two years ago, and has been a great belle in Philadelphia's social circles ever since. She has been the frequent guest of Mrs. Ernest G. Walker, of this city, her sister-in-law, and has made many friends and acquaintances in society here.

Lieut. Mannix is a son of the late Col. D. Pratt Mannix, U. S. M. uncle, the famous Confederate general, "Stonewall" Jackson. He is a young man of twenty-six, and his bride of yesterday, curiously enough, is the granddaughter of Capt. John Steele, of Ohio, who fought against "Stonewall" Jackson and after the civil war went to North Carolina and married Mrs. Dorothy Feider, the daughter of a private under Gen. Jackson.

Another curious fact in connection with this wedding is that a daughter of Capt. Steele became the wife of Mrs. Jenkins' father, making a complex as well as unique union of old families of the North and South. It would puzzle the casual observer to state off-hand just in how many ways the parties to the ceremony of yesterday are related. Mr. Jenkins is a young planter of modest means, and his bride is the daughter of a country official. She is decidedly pretty and owns to twenty-five years.

The newly married couple, after a short honeymoon in Washington, will go to New York and possibly to Akron, Ohio, to visit, near which city is the old home of Capt. Steele. Later Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins will return to North Carolina, where they will make their home.

Mrs. Clarence Moore, with her children, has returned to Washington from her summer home at Prides Crossing, Mass., and joined Mr. Moore at their home in Massachusetts avenue.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Mary Lynch, of this city, to Mr. John Barlow, a well-known attorney of Grafton, Va. The ceremony was performed Wednesday, October 5, in the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. Ambrose Beavan in the presence of a small company of relatives and close friends.

REALTY MEN GIVE BARBECUE

Potomac Heights Lots Sold While Bidders Feast.

Many Purchasers for Property Near Chain Bridge During Day Consumed 300 Loaves of Bread.

A combination barbecue and realty auction was held yesterday by the Potomac Heights Land Company, whose property, near Chain Bridge, was auctioned off, a lot at a time, by George and James Penny, who are owners of the American Realty Company, of Greensboro, N. C.

From a financial point of view, the day was a decided success, about $20,000 worth of property being sold. Spirited bidding marked the sale of corner lots, which went at a premium with the crowd. More than 1,600 bidders were present.

The barbecue was of the old Southern style. A long trench was dug and filled with red-hot coals. Suspended above this on iron spits were quarters of pigs and sheep. These were cooked very slowly, being placed on the fire at 4 o'clock in the morning and served at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Ten hogs, six sheep, and 300 loaves of bread were eaten by the crowd, drawn together by a common interest in the auction.

Pure water from two springs near by quenched the crowd's thirst, which patronized them liberally, owing to the heat of the day. These springs have been given by the realty company to the government, and will remain public property.

UNCLE SAM FETES FOREIGN DELEGATES

Brilliant Banquet Given in Honor of Penologists.

ALL PRAISE AMERICAN IDEA

Representatives of Many Nations Seated at Festive Board Receive Hospitality of Attorney General Wickersham and Respond to Toasts with Appreciative Words.

As guests of the government foreign delegates to the International Prison convention were tendered a brilliant banquet in the red room of the New Willard, last evening, and the hospitality and fellowship of the week, in the felicitous words of Attorney General Wickersham, were given a crowning touch.

Nothing was lacking to give the scene at the festive board an international significance. Responding to the toasts were representatives of many nations, all emphasizing the American idea, that no man, no matter how low, is incapable or unworthy of reformatory efforts. The contribution of the United States to the world's penology was given wide recognition.

Justice Kungsh T. King, of the Supreme Court of China, made a brief but effective address in which he paid tribute to the influence of the United States in bringing his country within reach of Occidental civilization, and Mr. Shegiro Ogawa, of Japan, stated it was common knowledge that America had been the chief agency in opening up his own country to the rest of the world.

Felt Around the World.

"Unquestionably the reformatory system is strong in the United States," said Dr. Eugenio Silveira, of Spain, "because of the general educational system of the country. The force of the American example is now felt around the world. We are glad we have had this trip to the new continent, because of what we have seen. It has been inspiring."

"The problem of crime obliterates all national boundaries," said J. T. Gilmore, warden of the Central prison of Toronto. "We all have a common battle in this regard. I may say for the Canadian delegation that we have greatly enjoyed our visit to Washington and that this congress has been a great success."

A feature of the evening was a brief greeting in three languages by Senor Augusto Peronetti, professor of the University of Rome. He spoke first in English, then in Italian, and then in French. "I hope as long as the sun shines in Rome the flowers will bloom in the American garden," he said.

Albert Garvin, superintendent of the State prison at Wethersfield, Conn., made a brief speech. The concluding address of the evening was made by Prof. Charles R. Henderson, president of the congress.

The punishment of crime is important, according to Blackstone," said Dr. Henderson, "but a bigger and more important achievement is the prevention of crime. The duty of a government comprises not merely the negative element of punishment, but to create a sociological environment leading to an upright life."

Improved in Chicago.

"I believe Chicago is a place you could not see heaven from even with the biggest telescope on earth. But in the great metropolis there is a vast improvement. Laws grow better, and conditions grow better. The forces for good are more powerful now than ever before."

The American delegates who were present at the banquet were congratulated upon the adoption of resolutions approving the indeterminate sentence by the other delegates. For many years the United States has advocated this idea in international congresses without success, but has finally won the point. The following is the gist of the resolution:

"The scientific principle of the indeterminate sentence is accepted, and should be applied to the mentally and morally defective. It should be applied, furthermore, as an important part of the reformatory system to offenders, especially juveniles capable of reformation. A maximum sentence should be fixed only so long as necessary, because of the novelty of the indeterminate sentence, and the lack of experience with it."

It was also officially declared that the effects of suspended sentence, without probationary oversight, are difficult, if not impossible, to ascertain. Therefore it was determined that no extensive system of suspended sentence should be placed in operation without an adequate probation system.

A feature of the banquet last night was the presence of three Cabinet officers—Attorney General Wickersham, who acted as chairman; Secretary Nagel, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, and Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture.

Exchange Bureau Needed.

An international bureau of exchange of court records and identification of criminals was discussed at the afternoon session. In framing resolutions delegates from Italy and France freely mentioned the Porter Charlton case as an example of the need for such a bureau. Prof. Gordon E. Sherman, of Yale, presented a resolution, which reads, in part, as follows:

"The person sentenced for crime in a foreign country should be liable in the land of his residence to the same forfeitures, incapacities, and loss of status which he would have incurred had he been committed there. In the present state of international law, the congress does not ask that such forfeitures, incapacities, and loss of status should be the immediate result of the foreign sentence, but that they should be pronounced in consequence of a special action in the courts of the criminal's own country."

An important resolution, dealing with the care and protection of children born out of wedlock, was discussed in one of the morning sessions. A debate arose over one of the provisions, which recommended that illegitimate children may bear their father's name, provided he is not married.
